

Different look back at 1977

Like it or not, 1977 has drawn to a close and the Valley has changed—a little for some a lot for others.
How did the year influence 115,000 people who call the area home? Were the major events of the year unexpected?
Sunday The TIMES will provide a unique look at the stories and issues that had people talking in 1977 and will still be felt in 1978; the news and newsmakers and little things some folks have forgotten already.
Look for the Valley's year in a different light, the way the people here remember it.
See it in The TIMES Sunday, Jan. 1.

Truck flips, I-580 shutdown

DUBLIN — One man was slightly injured yesterday when a tractor-trailer flipped over on Interstate 580 eastbound forcing California Highway Patrol officers to divert cars onto a frontage road for more than three hours.

Truck driver Jose Gomez was treated for minor injuries at Valley Memorial Hospital and released, a hospital spokesman said.

The accident occurred before 11 a.m. at the top of the Dublin grade. CHP officials had little information on the accident pending a full investigation, but said that it involved the flipped truck and two other vehicles. Only Gomez was reported injured.

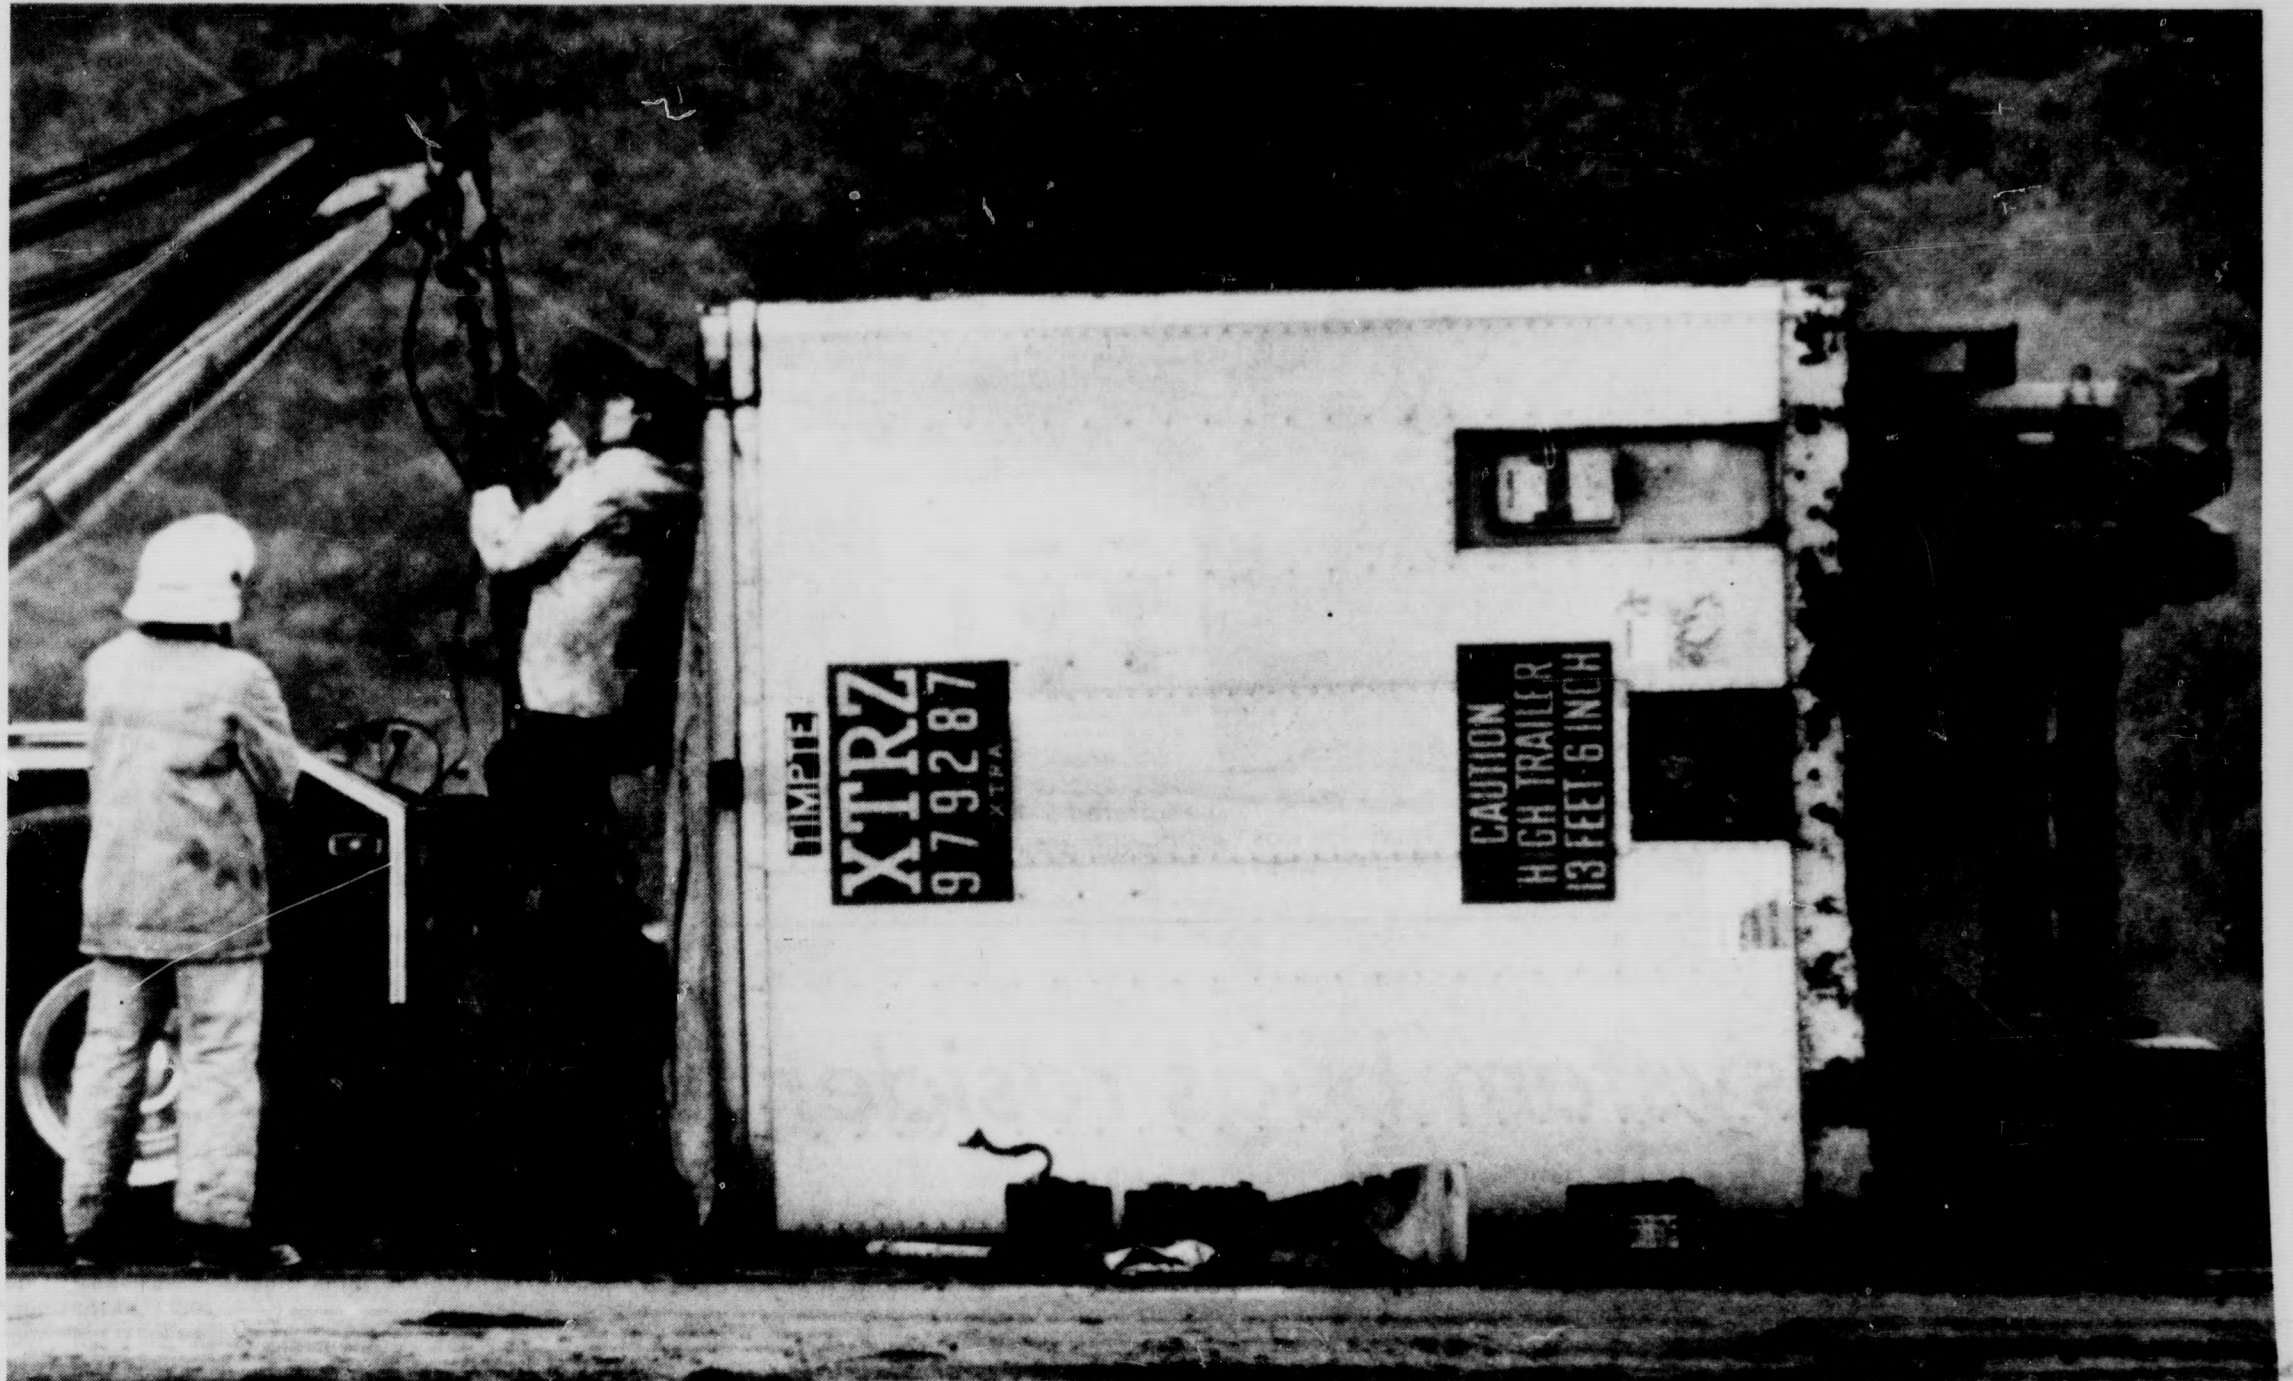

The fallen truck lay lengthwise in the eastbound lanes, forcing highway Patrol officers to reroute automobile traffic off at Eden Canyon to the frontage road that intersects with Foothill Road. Cars bulged along the curve before spurring back onto 580 at Foothill Road.

Large trucks were directed to continue their trek across 580 eastbound around the wreckage as a light rain constantly wetted the slick roadway.

Once clear of autos, workmen were able to maneuver heavy equipment into position to flip the truck upright once again. The traffic flow was normalized around 2 p.m. as the road was reopened to regular traffic.

Weather

Variable clouds to day with chance of occasional light showers. Mostly fair tonight and Saturday in the Valley except patches of fog night and morning. Lows in upper 30s and 40s. High in the 50s.

No more Mardi Gras here

The Pleasanton Junior Women's Mardi Gras, one of the Valley's most colorful social and fundraising events, has fallen victim to its own success.

It will be replaced this year by a Monte Carlo Night in which some 25 area clubs will participate, in the hopes of raising an estimated $4000, according to Martie Vassallo, chairwoman for the event.

The Monte Carlo Night will be held March 11 at the Exhibition Hall of the Alameda County Fairgrounds, and will be followed a week later by an awards dance March 18 in the Pleasanton Veterans Hall.

In its day — the last full-fledged Mardi Gras was held in 1976 — the event raised approximately $20,000 in one night. Area men and women were crowned "king" and "queen" at a formal ball, sometimes complete with imported costumes, traditionally held in area country clubs.

"We do not have the club size and the community participation that we need to hold it," said Vassallo of the Mardi Gras. "It was just too exhausting."

This year, Pleasanton Junior Women "will handle the gambling with play money, and the participating clubs will hold carnival-type booths," Vassallo said.

Last year, at a similar event which was followed by a Mardi Gras Ball, the Juniors raised $4000, Vassallo said. "We are hoping to raise that much again," she added, and the funds will "go right back into the community."

The Mardi Gras was traditionally preceded by a race for the king and queen title, and the two raising the most money for the Juniors were crowned at the ball. But this year, it is the clubs raising the most money which will be honored and receive "a small cash award" at the awards dance, Vassallo said.

City planner files papers for council

PLEASANTON — The count rose to three yesterday when planning commissioner Walt Wood filed his nomination papers, thereby becoming a city council candidate.

After spending eight years on the commission, the purchasing and sales agent for Villa Armando Winery decided to run for council after incumbents Bob Philcox and Joyce LeClaire announced neither would seek re-election. A strong contingent of local business persons involved in the Chamber of Commerce signed his nomination papers, including Chamber president Joyce Getty and former president William Hirst.

He joins Stan Kephart, a criminal justice specialist with the San Jose police force, and John Foley, a purchasing agent for an Oakland construction company, as official candidates for the March 7 election. Filing was scheduled to close noon yesterday, but was extended until noon Jan. 3 because the incumbents aren't running.

Where the people with money live in Contra Costa

The further north you drive on Interstate 680 from the Alameda - Contra Costa County line, the higher the family income, according to a survey compiled from 1975 and 1977 census figures.

Although pinpoint information was not available for the unincorporated areas of the county, senior economist Harlan Menkin was able to give some approximations of how the income level in San Ramon, Danville and Alamo has risen over the past two years.

The median family income — that's the family in the middle when all family incomes are ranked from top to bottom — in San Ramon was $19,331 in 1975. That rose to an estimated figure somewhere between $20,800 and $21,600 as the median household income.

In Danville, the income median rose from $22,000 to somewhere between $23,700 to $24,500. In Alamo the rise over two years went from $25,353 to around $27,300 to $28,300.

It was easier to pin down the increases in the cities throughout Contra Costa County because they all went through a special census in 1977. By comparison, the median family income in Walnut Creek $19,100, up 11 per cent from two years ago because much more expensive housing has been built recently in that city, said Menkin.

Lowest median income in the county was reported from North Richmond with $3,700. The neighborhood has several hundred persons, mostly low-income. Highest is Orinda with $30,400-$31,000.

In 1975, approximately 34 per cent of the households in the county had two wage earners. In nearly all cases that represented a man and wife both working. No figure was available for the 1977 census.

Amador meets Granada in soccer finale

Amador Valley and Granada will meet in the finals of the Balistic United Amador Valley Soccer Tournament at 1 p.m. today on the Amador Valley High School field. AV topped Livermore 4-0 and Granada blanked Foothill 2-0 in semi-final action yesterday to advance to today's finals. In the consolation championship game Memorial will take on Newark at 11 a.m. Newark defeated San Ramon 4-2 and Memorial nipped De La Salle 3-2 yesterday in semi-final consolation action.

Is it the answer to big bureaucracy?

How county government stacks up in '70s

OAKLAND — With Alameda County administering more and more state and federal programs and also having to yield to regional, state and federal agencies on land use planning, the question may be in order: Is county government obsolete?

The Times talked to supervisors and got a variety of opinions on the topic, though they all concurred that county government is not outmoded. It can do some things other levels of government cannot.

The Valley's supervisor, Valerie Raymond, said the county probably uses 30 to 40 per cent outside money, but the bulk of it still is county money and county responsibility.

In Raymond's opinion the chief advantage to county government, echoed by all of the other supervisors polled, is its relative proximity to citizens.

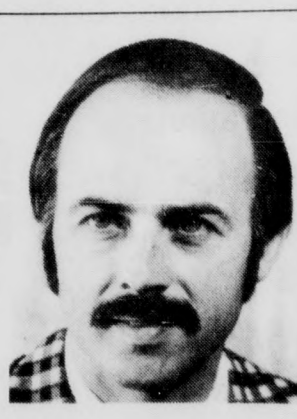

There is no remote bureaucracy to deal with; a supervisor is as near as your telephone, said Raymond.

In one comparison between the county's way of doing things and the federal bureaucracy, a study by the county's social services department showed that the county had an inefficiency rate of around 5 to 7 per cent in administering a welfare program later taken over by the federal government. The federal record with it rose to more than 30 per cent inefficiency (including slow checks to recipients, computer errors and that kind of thing.)

If one has to deal with programs on the state level, he or she can go to an Assembly Member or Senator, but then be told, "I can do it your way, but there are 119 other people who want to do it their way," said Raymond. With five county supervisors, things get resolved in a much clearer way, she said.

Why is state and regional government moving in on local governments, especially in land use planning?

"The reality you have to face is that local government has blown it in the past 10 or 15 years," said Raymond. "There still are too many officials that refuse to deal with problems on a non-parochial level. We are dealing with regional impacts, where one city has a problem with another. The ABAG environmental management task force plan is the real acid test of whether local government can bite the bullet and do the thing themselves. And if we don't, the state will come in and do it for us."

Supervisor Charles Santana of Hayward thinks the board of supervisors is a real champion of the people taking on Sacramento and in no way rubber stamps the state. He has a reputation as a citizen activist and feels the board's image is becoming that, especially now that Raymond and Supervisor John George of Oakland have joined the board.

San Francisco gets $52 per resident in state mental health funds versus $15 per resident for us because of their lobbying influence in Sacramento. We need to change that. I see us as five strong lobbyists working for Alameda County," said Santana.

Just as a gratis remark, Santana mentioned that "maybe Alameda County is too big and it ought to be split." It doesn't necessarily reflect his own thinking, but one of his Hayward constituents is mounting a behind-the-scenes campaign to saw south county off from the north. It's reminiscent of former Livermore Council Member Roger Silva's suggestion a few years ago that the Valley ought to form its own county, a notion that didn't get very far.

Hero visits girl he saved

Pleasanton's Melodee Mavridis was delighted when Lawrence Lent dropped by to see her this week, even though it was only the second time in her life she'd met him. The first time he saved her life.

Lent, an officer with the Oakland Police Department, showed her the Medal of Merit he was awarded for saving her life at the Oakland Airport this past July Fourth.

Melodee, a freshman at Amador High School, had been waiting with her mother to board a flight to Portland when she suddenly, "collapsed on the floor with a seizure," recalled Mrs. Mavridis.

"I heard a commotion and saw her choking," said Lent, explaining that she had turned as blue as her Adidas tee shirt.

Lent, who had taken a first aid class "some weeks before," stopped her from choking and then applied mouth to mouth resuscitation.

"I'm grateful to God he was there," said Mrs. Mavridis.

Mrs. Mavridis wrote a letter to Oakland's Police chief expressing her thanks to Lent, and in September he was awarded the Medal of Merit.

Lent is a 30-year veteran on the force and has been assigned security duties at the airport the last three years. He had previously been awarded the Medal of Valor and the Blue Star. Lent is currently the only Oakland police officer to have received all three medals.

Kottinger Place

Alarm system bugs residents

PLEASANTON — An ill feeling lingers at Kottinger Place, a 50-unit federally subsidized public project for the elderly.

Checks of individual apartments yesterday showed that many of the alarms hooked up to the fault emergency alarm system work. Yet those same buzzers didn't work last week, last month, or last year, leading residents to believe the system's master panel has been kept shut off during the past two or three years.

"Apparently the emergency alarm system had been turned off, but the housing authority wasn't aware of it," the commissioners weren't aware of it. It wasn't supposed to be turned off, but it could have been," said housing authority director Michael Parsons.

When on and working, the alarm sets off a buzzer and red light in front of the victim's apartment, as well as in apartment 16 where the main panel is kept.

A recent death reported in newspapers spotlighted the long-known faulty system early this week. Residents say they knew the system was sporadic, but didn't understand why it wasn't kept on to provide what little help possible until replaced.

The master panel sits in the apartment of former manager Gladys LaPlant, who is out of town this week. Parsons says it wasn't her responsibility to keep the panel on all the time.

"I always thought the system just didn't work at all. I didn't know it was shut off until the maintenance man came to test my buzzer (yesterday). Mine went off. My neighbors' buzzers went off. But I used to test that switch every morning for awhile and it never worked until yesterday when they turned the main switch on," said one of 11 Kottinger residents who spoke with The Times yesterday.

Another resident phoned the newspaper to say "all the buzzers worked when they tested them." Not so, according to the director.

"Some are working and some aren't," he said after each unit had been tested. When asked how many didn't work during the test, he said, "I don't think you need numbers for your story so I'm not going to give them to you."

Parsons said articles have stirred unrest among the elderly residents — unrest he hopes to clear up today during a meeting with residents at 1 p.m. and with authority commissioners at 4 p.m.

But six Kottinger senior citizens phoned The Times to say the unrest was welcome.

"The system hasn't worked because it hasn't been turned on, that's why," said one. "The system may be faulty, but mine works today. And it didn't work last week because it was shut off. I have a heart condition. What if I had an attack?" City council last month granted the authority $10,000 in federal Housing and Community Development Act funds to replace the current system which has had underground wiring. Parsons hopes to hook the new system up to a 24-hour answering service or a full-time manager's apartment, if the authority can afford either.

Engineers, contractors and manufacturers dealing with DSRSD's fluoride system are exploring the possibility that a "flow" problem could be holding up perfecting the system.

But there could be other undiscovered bugs, too, Cattann said.

The flow problem deals with water bought by DSRSD from water wholesaler Zone 7.

During summer months, Zone 7 records an average water flow of 1000 gallons per minute, Cattann explained. In wintertime the flow drops since people don't use as much water in winter as they do in summer, he added.

"If the water flow drops below 500 gallons per minute, the flow isn't recorded as accurately," Cattann continued.

Council meets today on central area use

LIVERMORE — The city council will meet at 9 a.m. today to consider final changes in the Central Area Element and adopt a resolution amending the General Plan.

The final plan proposes a north-south pedestrian mall along N Street and generally located between M and O Streets. Parking and circulation for the mall should be located on the eastern and western portions of the property between P and L Streets.

Both city council and planning commission have wrestled with the plan and its possible alternatives all fall, before coming to this general agreement. Originally the planning commission favored an east-west mall along Railroad Avenue, possibly closing that street for the mall. But council members felt the mall extending along N

Street would leave Railroad Avenue open for traffic, easing congestion problems along First Street, and tying the mall into the established First Street businesses more effectively.

Planning commissioners relented on the council's recommendation that property owned by Walter Ng north of Stanley Boulevard adjacent to the intersection with Railroad Avenue. Planning commissioners felt the property should change to office or multiple residential uses, but council members agreed to the more diversified service commercial zoning after hearing Ng's arguments at the last council meeting.

The Ng property currently is designated commercial general.

And when the council split on zoning for a similar piece of property south of Stanley Boulevard on Murrieta Boulevard, planning commissioners sent back a recommendation of office use. Council members could not decide whether to make it office or commercial service.

Although the property already has some commercial service business, commissioners felt it desirable to hold office zoning there to provide a buffer for nearby apartments, medical offices and convalescent homes in the Fenton Avenue area.

Council members also will be asked to authorize execution of agreement between the city and Airport Two, Ltd. for assignment and amendment of lease agreement for airport property. The amendment would allow the firm to extend the term of the current lease from 2001 to 2011, an additional 10 years.

Problems to solve when Dublin fluoridates water

DUBLIN — Dublin residents will begin brushing their teeth with fluoridated water as soon as minor problems are solved.

Some "fine tuning" is the only thing left to do to the fluoridation system, according to Emil Cattann. He is an engineer with the Dublin San Ramon Services District (DSRSD).

In 1975, Dublinites voted to have artificial fluoride added to their drinking water.

He explained there had to be an accurate flow reading in order to maintain the correct amount of fluoride in the water.

Fluoride helps prevent tooth decay by hardening the enamel on teeth, according to dentists. The State department of Health will be controlling the DSRSD fluoride Project. That department has determined the amount of fluoride that can be added to the water. This amount is dependent upon the mean temperature.

Burglars strike Dublin TV shop

DUBLIN — A local television shop was broken into early yesterday and burglarized of $1,517 in television sets in the third such large scale burglary this month.

The sheriff's department reported that someone had broken a glass door at Contemporary TV and Stereo Center at 7364 San Ramon Road which touched off a silent alarm about 2 a.m. Deputies responded to the scene minutes later but found no suspects in the area.

The store reported that three television sets were missing. Others were stacked up near the door but not taken.

On Dec. 9, burglars smashed a display window at Star Television Co. at 6866 Village Parkway and took 15 television sets and some stereo equipment with a total value of $7,219.

Nine days later, a vehicle plowed into the front of Star Television Co. and burglars removed seven television sets valued at $4,125.

These two burglaries also set off silent alarms but deputies found no suspects in either case. An investigation into the thefts is continuing.

Valley obituary

Ruth Irvin

Ruth M. Irvin, a resident of Dublin for the past seven years, died in Pleasanton Wednesday. She was 81.

A native of Colorado, she was a 50-year member of Eastern Star Garden City Chapter No. 3 of Greeley, Colo.

She is survived by a son, Dr. John Beem of Perkasie, Pa., a daughter, Margaret Reische of Dublin, and six grandchildren.

Memorial services will be held today at 7 p.m. at Graham - Hitch Mortuary, 675 St. John St. in Pleasanton, followed by private cremation and interment in Fort Logan National Cemetery in Denver, Colo.

The family prefers donations to one's favorite charity in lieu of flowers.

Supervisors defend county government

Supervisor George, the first black elected to the board, is especially concerned with his Oakland-Berkeley constituency. He thinks the county does not have to be a mere passive conduit of state and federal money or even an ombudsman for people who have trouble with the system.

The county can assume a real activist role by doing such things as forming a county bank which would encourage construction investment in the low-income areas all around the county.

George has a staff of volunteers who have been working on the idea for a year and he will be ready to present it to supervisors sometime next year.

"An Alameda County Development Corporation would make loans in areas where private investors do not make them. It would be an 'entrepreneur of the last resort'. The county bank would be part of that package. The county is big enough to handle that financially and small enough to be close to the people," said George.

"You don't have to run to Sacramento. People can come to 1221 Oak St., deal with five supervisors and get more results," he stated.

PERSPECTIVE 1977-1978

The idea already is working in Massachusetts, said George. The non-profit corporation raises money through general obligation bonds. The bonds are to be paid off through the property tax, but the economic growth accomplished through the loans really has the effect of offsetting those tax costs, said George.

Asked whether or not county government is outmoded, Supervisor Fred Cooper of Alameda responded: "Sure, it's obsolete, if you feel that welfare should be distributed by the federal government. But we've already seen what happened when one program was switched to the federal government and run through their computers in Baltimore." (That was the program above where the federal government had more than a 30 per cent margin of error.)

County government also has its role in trying to keep control locally. "As the Environmental Protection Agency imposes more and more requirements, the decisions get made in other places," said Cooper. "That hurts people who need jobs, so we (on the county board) send people to regional government to express our views about it."

In Contra Costa County, Supervisor Eric Hasseltine of Danville, whose district includes South San Ramon, agreed in substance with his Alameda County counterparts.

"The state and federal governments are not power-hungry — they are trying to respond to concerns by their constituents that are not being adequately addressed by local governments," said Hasseltine.

But the best solution lies at home, he said. Regional, state and federal government are made up of folks who don't understand the local problems very well, both in planning and things like health needs. There is a "tremendous diversity" among the state's counties and the remote bureaucratic monolith in Sacramento can't tailor programs to local needs the way counties can, commented Hasseltine.

Packing law

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Starting Jan. 1, shippers of about 100,000 kinds of hazardous materials on California roads will have to comply with packaging regulations, the California Highway Patrol says.

CHP Commissioner Glen Craig said Wednesday the patrol was extending its packaging rules to shippers in response to a new state law.

He said the exemption for shippers in the current regulations has made it impossible for some truckers to comply with packaging rules because some hazardous materials — pesticides, for example — may not have been properly labeled or packaged by the shipper.

Wage spiral

"Where do our public employees get all their big ideas on wages and benefits?"

That is a question more than one taxpayer has asked lately. The answer may be found not in the rank and file of those workers, but rather in the higher echelons of public service.

In yet another play on "Parkinson's Law," it becomes apparent that "wages at the bottom end of the scale tend to move upward in response to the highest levels of that scale."

School teachers might be one good example of that argument.

The public (and the press) get very nervous when "militant teachers" demand starting wages that hover near the $10,000 mark. We tend to resist such requests, arguing that "the move to hold down expenses and taxes has to start somewhere."

Perhaps we're starting at the wrong end. While a great deal is said, and printed, about teachers' wages, there is no comparable reaction to school administrators' salaries that easily slip above the $30,000 mark these days, and look now to be headed for $40,000 per year, and beyond.

The plight of Pleasanton - Amador school systems in recent years is an example for all suburban communities. Three years ago, the school superintendent at Pleasanton walked out on his contract, and his $32,000 - plus salary, to accept another Bay Area suburban center's offer of close to $40,000.

This month, the Pleasanton school boards went to $39,000 for its chief administrator; not enough... he's leaving to accept a package worth more than $44,000 in a Southern California suburb.

Today, federal employees are hollering for higher wages and benefits; war veterans are demanding improved pensions. Congress is resisting.

But that same Congress recently voted itself a 33 percent pay boost, to a staggering $57,000 per year, plus generous expense accounts.

Where does the wage - tax spiral start? You figure it out.

Those Yule lights

Thomas Proctor is a one reader who questions why this newspaper, among others, can still "encourage energy - wasting lights" at Christmas time. We should be encouraging "contests that do not waste our natural resources," Mr. Proctor argues.

His rebuke is timely, and well received. About all we could add is — "If the energy crisis is still as bad as President Carter says it is, then how come he burned all those bulbs on the White House Christmas tree?"

As with most things, we tend to follow the leader.

Sacto's big year

By Fred W. Kline
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — From an overall economic impact standpoint, perhaps the most important bill facing the California legislature in 1978 will be to finish the state water project.

As far as business and industry are concerned, the major legislation may be AB 1295, dealing with mandatory overtime.

On the first issue, the bill in question is SB 346, which went down to defeat on the final night of the 1977 session when a delicate coalition of support fell apart in sections.

The California Manufacturers Association, CMA, also sees this as the number one issue next year when discussing measures involving the economy, environment and the energy problem.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. also has told reporters recently that he personally is committed to achieving approval for completion of the state water project, which was the major achievement of his father during his tenure as governor of California.

The CMA points out that SB 346, by Senator Ruben Ayala, D-San Bernardino, provides for major new water development including the much discussed Peripheral Canal around the Sacramento - San Joaquin river delta, together with the requirement that state and federal operations comply with water quality control standards set by the state Water Resources Control Board.

The bill's opposition rose from water quality proponents and from potential water customers.

Ayala and the governor will have a tremendous job in trying to put together another consensus of support for their proposal.

The other bill, AB 1295, has nothing to do with water, but it could become the biggest snow job of 1978.

The bill's author is Assemblyman Tom Bates, D-Oakland.

One of Bates' colleagues, a fellow democrat, Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, said AB 1295 perhaps was the most "anti-business" bill to hit the legislature this session.

That was in 1977 and, unfortunately the bill is not dead yet.

The measure is destined to become the focal point of major confrontation between labor and business in the legislative arena.

The bill, which would prohibit employers from forcing workers to put in overtime, shows a considerable lack of knowledge about business.

Supporters of the legislation claim it is aimed at large companies because those employing less than 50 persons are exempt from its provisions.

But the young assemblyman and his backers are apparently unaware that a small business can easily employ 50 persons and still be operating on the slimmest of profit margins.

Often, the ability to satisfy that extra sales effort through requiring overtime, may mean the difference between continuing in business and employing all those folks or taking a loss and ultimately having to quit.

Each new employee hired costs a company tremendous amounts of money just to set up bookkeeping, not to mention salary, fringe benefits and huge amounts of paperwork required by all government levels these days.

Obviously, a small profit margin means hiring these extra employees could be financially impossible.

And, for many employers it would mean the inability to conduct business.

Many manufacturers and business representatives have already voiced their concern to California lawmakers on this bill, and have told them in no uncertain terms that if this had been law in California when they were considering where to locate they would have ruled out the golden state.

FOCUS/Local control

Grass Roots II

Barring a massive hue and cry emanating from the grass roots, Valley residents as well as those in most other parts of this state, will continue to see the gradual erosion of local control in all phases of the public domain.

And likely, in a more insidious manner, in private affairs, also.

A look back over the previous 12 months, focusing just on occurrences here in the Valley, is proof that trying to maintain some control over our destinies is a day-to-day struggle.

At the root of the problem is the basic relationship between local, county, state and federal officials — their responsiveness to each other and the people who pay their salaries.

The phenomena of the 1970s has been the escalation in the complexity of government at all levels, in tandem with the growing bureaucracy ("educationese") of public education.

Government has become more democratic, if only in the sense that there is greater participation by and attention to the needs of those heretofore "shut out" of "the system."

But all of us are paying for this equalizing of power.

We "pay" for it in the countless federal and state programs aimed at guaranteeing minorities, the "disadvantaged" an equal share — whether it be in outright financial assistance or greater job and educational opportunities.

We are also paying for a supposedly freer society via an ever-mounting crime bill.

The latter deserves additional attention, not only because criminal activities are following the populace here to the suburbs, but due to new "definitions" being advanced as to what are unlawful actions.

For example, the 70s have seen more respectability given to use of marijuana, pills, even cocaine and heroin. Prostitution has been characterized in many official quarters as a "victimless crime" and pornography has gained a vastly wider audience through motion picture houses and magazines.

The net effect is a mocking assault and smear of the puritan ethic.

While one may be indifferent to this result, it is hard to remain uncaring when the realization strikes that we're paying an increasingly higher price and getting less-desirable "goods" thrust upon us.

There is only one way to change this "from-the-top-down" order and that is to get involved at the grass roots — by getting to know the planning commissioners, the council members, school board and Valley agency reps — and make your feelings known.

Yule lites waste

Editor, The Times:

It would seem in these times of documented energy shortages responsible citizens and newspapers alike would encourage conservation. Gaudy displays of energy wasting lights would be officially discouraged instead of praised. It appears that your newspaper encourages waste of this type by awarding monetary prizes to homes decorated for the holiday season using an excess of lights.

Most electricity is obtained in one of two ways — hydraulic power or burning of foreign bought oil — each of which costs us dearly. It would be nice to see your newspaper encourage contests, in the future, that did not waste our natural resources by encouraging the waste of energy merely for a contest.

Happy signers

Editor, The Times:

A short note to thank the people that has stepped forward to sign the Initiative Petition:

Some of the comments that should be mentioned was: "What can we do to get a change?" — "Who do they (elected officials) think they are anyway?" — "What good does it do to vote, they will do as they please" — "As soon as they get elected, their promises to represent the people go out the window," still another, "If they get by with this we might as well give up voting." — "I thought we were going to stop polluting the bay."

One of the highlights for me while standing in the cold and rain, was when Robert Allen, BART Director stepped forward and said, "Let me help you this Christmas Eve." After he started working, people came with no skepticism, saying "Hello Bob, what ever you've got, I'll sign, you are the most honest elected official we have. Where do you want me to sign?" Another elected official, Robert Pearson, of Zone 7 has also stepped forward to collect signatures and help.

At the time of this writing we have gathered 3000 of the needed 5000 signatures to return this unwanted project to the ballot for voter approval. Until victory is accomplished we shall be on the streets collecting signatures. Look for us, we will be there, step up and sign! Be a part of the CARD victory. Power to the People!!!

Christmas pain

This is a happy time of year for most of us, though some people get depressed by Christmas.

Recognizing that some get the holiday blues, a Unitarian Church in Bethesda, Md., decided to do something about it. The minister's staff started a "Christmas clinic", a sort of therapy group for people bummed out by the holidays.

The first year it was held, 24 people showed up for a variety of reasons. Some said they expected Christmas to be such a happy time that they were disappointed greatly when their expectations did not come true — and they were afraid of another letdown.

Others told about how inadequate they felt in meeting other people's expectations, especially at family reunions. Two people were facing their first Christmas alone after a divorce.

The financial demands alone on some of them made it a time of great anxiety, which, of course, is ironic, when you consider how poor the originator of Christmas was and what his religion is supposed to be all about.

The Christmas clinic became an annual event at the church. One of its leaders, Elizabeth Anastos, commented that it seems to help people simply to talk about their distaste for Christmas. One person who attended the previous Christmas clinic said the experience allowed him to consciously scale down his expectations.

The church's minister, Rev. Kenneth MacLean, has some had some interesting insights into Christmas and the clinic.

"Despite what some perceive as the 'overcommercialization' of Christmas, in our culture Christmas is the last complex ritual that demands participation from all of us and gives us, in return, a sense of being part of a larger life."

"The essential demand it makes is that we connect somehow with the people who matter in our lives. The traditional way of doing this is through gifts and greetings. Many people need help and support to do this, for giving and receiving are very basic transactions in all our lives and they are related to our greatest hopes and fears and insecurities."

"But perhaps the most important help came from the realization that there were other people facing the season with similar feelings. Vulnerability that is shared is sometimes turned to strength."

I'd say that vulnerability being turned to strength is what Christmas is all about.

round the town

I remember it well. The smell of crab apples pulling us like bees to the hive. Or moths to the flame.

We would shinny up the tree with all the courage of a Buck Jones, all the dexterity of an Errol Flynn. And then, just as the prize was in reach, down would come this great voice from the tree-owner's house:

"Get out of my tree, you young thieves. You're nothing but a bunch of terrorists!"

I guess we were, if you count apple-filching as an act of terror. The owner of that tree did.

Frederick J. Hacker, M.D., would not. Dr. Hacker is "one of the world's foremost authorities on the psychology of terrorism." Dr. Hacker has set forth his knowledge of terrorists in a book.

"CRUSADERS, CRIMINALS' CRAZIES." That's the title. Dr. Hacker suggests that most acts of terrorism fall into one of those three categories. In 395 pages, and with the assistance of Bantam Books, the author tells everything you've ever wanted to know about terrorism and terrorists, and perhaps a great deal more.

What kind of a nut would devote his talents to the study of crazies etc.? I'm glad you asked.

"An internationally renowned psychiatrist specializing in the study of aggression and terrorism." That's what kind. Dr. Hacker has found his services very much in demand, of late. One thing the world is not short of is terrorists.

He was summoned into the Patty Hearst case, by the family, to counsel them on the workings of the SLA. He was appointed by the courts to provide "expert testimony" at the trial of Charles Manson and his following of crazies.

Dr. Hacker was consultant to the West German government, in the aftermath of the Munich Olympic Games massacre. He has been the man in the middle when nations try to deal with Arabian skyjackers.

So, you can see that terrorism has provided Dr. Hacker with fulltime occupation. After all, there just aren't too many experts available in that field.

Before you can read the book, you have to understand the language.

"There is a difference between terror and terrorism," the author notes. (No such distinction is noted in my American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language; but then again, what do they know?)

"Terror," Dr. Hacker observes, "which is inflicted from above, is the manufacture and spread of fear by dictatorships, governments and bosses." (We have all known one or two bosses with that talent.)

"Terrorism, which is imposed from below, is the manufacture and spread of fear by rebels, revolutionaries and protesters." Dr. Hacker attacks you from both ends... above and below. His book contains some other goodies.

"Rape of the mind" is the chapter which leads into the author's experience with Patricia Hearst. (Dr. Hacker persists in calling her "Patty", but then you must remember that he was part of the Hearst family team.)

I don't know why I'm telling you all this. Maybe it's just that I believe every American should be up to date on the crazies. Goodness knows, there's enough of them running around these days.

"All violence is aggressive, but not all aggression is violent." That's another of Dr. Hacker's offerings. You can immediately determine he has never covered the local city council meetings.

He has covered most everything else. Whenever two or more homo sapiens get together to raise a little hell, Dr. Hacker is there.

He has spoken with Khalid, leader of the Al-Fatah. He has studied Entebbe, understands Idi Amin, has a good grasp of Rafael Trujillo. You only have to be nuts, violent and famous to get a mention in Fred Hacker's book.

I suppose it is good that we now have one handy reference piece embracing all of the world's loonies. On the other hand, it is nice to know that, just by avoiding this one paperback, you might also skip most of the world's recent bloodied history.

Personally, I have never been much on terror. Had a terrible time making it through "Macbeth." Even "Thorn Birds" leaves me cold.

I am a lover, not a fighter, I have determined. Just getting caught in that tree was enough terror to last this apple-filcher a lifetime.

Tax vote

It may be doing it the hard way but the Jarvis Initiative emerges as one sure way to compel reductions in government spending and bring a measure of relief from property taxation. In fact, it may be the last clear chance the people will have to bring about a halt to the continuing spiral of government costs.

For it is now all but certain that the Herculean effort mounted by the sponsors of the people "Peoples Petition to Control Taxation" has won the battle to submit the issue to the voters next June.

The very thought of its passage hangs like the sword of Damocles over politicians and bureaucrats alike, driving the governor and legislators bananas and local government officials into sheer panic.

Top state officials, including the governor, have been huddling for days with the lawmakers in efforts to devise a tax reform measure to be rushed through the Legislature. Their hope is to present a package signed, sealed and delivered, before April, which will satisfy the public and thus convince the voters that the Jarvis amendment is unnecessary.

The question is can they do it? It will be touch and go. For it is beyond the realm of likelihood that the legislators will ever agree on anything which comes close to what Jarvis is offering the people. That proposal, pure and simple, limits property taxes to 1 per cent of cash value. The value will be that as shown on the 1975-76 tax bill. While it will not be frozen the total value may not be raised more than 2 per cent in any year to adjust for inflation.

Furthermore, it prohibits the Legislature from imposing any new or increased taxes excepting by a two thirds vote of each house. While it would allow cities and counties to impose special taxes this could only be done by a two thirds vote of the people and in no case could such taxes be on property.

The effect of its passage would be to reduce local government revenues by an estimated $7 billion annually. This, opponents say, will compel the state to shift taxes to other sources to compensate for the loss of revenue. But does it? It will compel local government to take a hard look at expenditures for the first time since the depression days. For the truth is that government has been on a spending spree ever since WW II without once looking back. Much of today's cost of government has come about through the addition of services which never were approved by the people. If the Legislature must make up revenues to meet the costs, many of these services will have a hard time getting a two thirds vote.

Between now and June legislative efforts will be to lull the voters into passiveness by adopting a "tax reform" which will give some small reduction in current property taxes with the promise of strict limitations in future increases and still more promises of limitations on government spending.

But the public is up to its ears in promises made and promises broken. Furthermore they want more than limits on future spending, they want reductions. Because of this efforts will be made to frighten the voters away from the Jarvis amendment by dire predictions of the disasters which will result from its passage. But there will be no disaster.

If there are faults in the Jarvis initiative they can be readily remedied after passage. It will not be the first time the public adopted a drastic initiative to compel the lawmakers to deal head-on with the issue. The cold fact is that had the sponsors of the initiative not qualified their proposal for the ballot the chances for any action to reform property taxes would be far less than they now are.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My dearest friend told me last week that life would be a lot easier for me if I learned to say what I mean and not always bend to other people's wills. I was stunned and confused. I tried to think why she said this. Finally, I decided it was because I'd been complaining lately about situations that had upset me. Instead of doing something about them, I confide in her. We're very old friends and she's always telling me not to be so passive and cowardly, but it's hard for me not to be. We were taught as children that nice women don't make a fuss about things. "Be agreeable" was rule number one in our home. How can I change at my stage of life?

DEAR R.D.: Change is always possible and this can occur at any age, at any time.

Life is a series of patterns but we can learn to break old patterns and live with new, more creative, more rewarding ones.

Lots of women are passive because they've been conditioned to be that way, not only by their families but by society as a whole and also because they have such a low opinion of themselves. Assertiveness comes from personal security and a sense of being valuable as a human being. It teaches people how to get what they want, to express themselves honestly and openly without hurting the feelings of others and without being angry, rude and uncontrolled.

Often, because we want so much to be liked and accepted we say yes or agree to do things when we really want and perhaps need to say no. It's important for you to respect yourself and in order to do this, you must be in touch with yourself. Your neighbor is correct, life would be easier and much more pleasant if you learned to be assertive. I'd suggest you look into some course on this at your local college or high school. It is very worthwhile.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband is a nagger. I've tried taking it on the chin for years, but as I grow older, I find it chipping away my insides. Now, I scream which only makes it worse. I get furious even when I know he's tired and overworked. He doesn't seem to realize that I get tired too. This constant nagging is destroying our marriage because I get so mad I don't want him near me sexually. I've tried to talk with him about it but it doesn't do any good. What do you suggest?

DEAR A.B.: Nagging is a weak form of aggression that's often used by persons who are too insecure to risk a real confrontation with a more direct, honest expression of anger. Of course, nagging can destroy the close, warm feelings necessary for a good sex life. Sometimes it's sexual frustration that leads to nagging, but whatever the root cause, it sounds to me as if nagging had become a habit in your home.

You and your husband are becoming more and more alienated as he continues his nagging and you react in your own destructive way. In order to break the pattern, it will first be necessary for both of you to agree that it exists.

Try to work out a plan: As soon as he starts to nag, sit down and, instead of running around the subject of his nagging, try to analyze it. You'll find that what he's nagging about often has very little relationship to what is really wrong. For instance, he may complain about a relatively minor thing, such as too much salt on a vegetable, when what's really bothering him is that you haven't asked his brother to dinner. For some reason, he doesn't want to face the real issue, so he disguises it, often without being aware of it himself. In order to break the old habit, replace it with a new and more constructive one.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been using two different decaffeinated brands of coffee. Recently, a friend told me that when the caffeine is removed something else is used to replace it that can cause cancer. Is this true?

I've seen TV commercials stating doctors say it's okay to drink decaffeinated coffee. So, I am quite concerned if I should continue to drink decaffeinated coffee or not.

DEAR READER — You can forget about the cancer problem in relation to decaffeinated coffee. A few years ago, some of the decaffeinated products were made using trichlorethylene, a chemical related to vinyl chloride, as a degreasing agent. It was found that large amounts of this chemical instilled in the stomachs of mice with a gastric tube might cause cancer in some strains of mice.

You need to know that some mice are particularly susceptible to cancer and others are more resistant. The amount of chemical used was comparable to a human drinking 50 million cups of decaffeinated coffee a day, which I think most reasonable persons would consider somewhat unrealistic.

Nevertheless, the companies using the chemical as a degreasing agent stopped using it entirely rather than fight the hysteria. I would like to emphasize that not one case of liver cancer or other cancer in human beings has ever been shown to be caused by drinking any amount of decaffeinated coffee. So, if it is fear of cancer that concerns you about drinking decaffeinated coffee — fear no more, and drink up.

I have a somewhat different opinion about advising everyone who cannot tolerate coffee well to switch to a decaffeinated brand. Despite the TV commercials, caffeine is only part of the story. The flavor oils and other chemicals in coffee are irritating to the digestive system of some sensitive people. These people who continue to have digestive complaints may find that stopping all forms of coffee is necessary to get the best results.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing in regard to your column on improved heart valve surgery. The advice and explanation you gave to the person was right on.

I had rheumatic fever several times as a child, and was to the point I was unable to do anything.

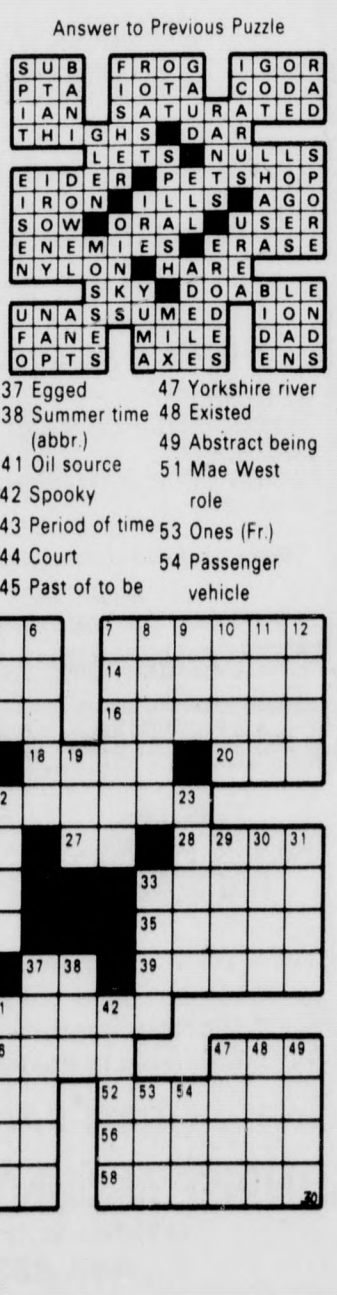

I had the mitral valve replaced 15 years ago. Since then, it's been like the good Lord handed me a whole new life. I raised two children, I do all of my housework, bowl, dance and I'm a part-time nursing assistant in geriatrics.

This may sound like a testimonial, but I just want people to know that heart surgery really works.

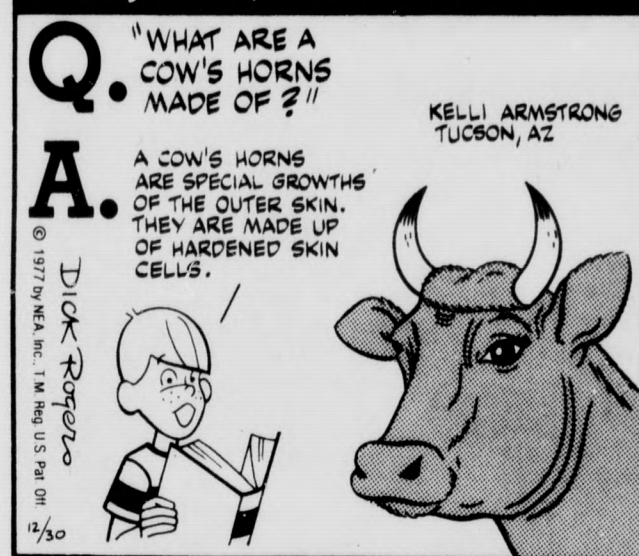

DEAR READER — Thank you for sharing your experience with our readers. Yes, it certainly seems like a miracle when a person gets good results. I would agree with your remarks, with the sole caution that it is wonderful for the person who needs it. Not all cases with valve defects require surgery, and not all cases benefit to the degree that you have. Nevertheless, it is a great and important advance as cases such as yours demonstrate so well.

Another team, a different scene

On Sports

So, professional ice hockey is back in the Bay Area.

The San Francisco Shamrocks of the new Pacific Hockey League started play this past week with mixed results, one win and two defeats.

But the win-loss record is not really that important to die-hard hockey fans in the Bay Area, who have been starving for their favorite sport since the California Seals left for Cleveland.

They've got a team to cheer for and that's all that matters.

The Shamrocks drew 4,000 people Monday night but could take in just 1,793 fans Tuesday when they topped the Phoenix Roadrunners 4-1.

The low attendance against Phoenix was probably due to the rainy weather and the fact the Golden State Warriors were hosting the Los Angeles Lakers across the bay in Oakland the same night.

How well the Shamrocks will draw over the entire season is anybody's guess.

The Seals slumped in attendance the last two years they were here but their forerunners, the San Francisco Seals of the old Western Hockey League, boomed in attendance, particularly their second and third seasons (1963 and 1964). Of course they won the WHL championship those seasons.

And remember, this was just after the San Francisco Giants had brought the Bay Area its first major league title, a National League championship in 1962.

Those old Seals crowds were always emotional, enthusiastic supporters of the club.

I remember as a young boy I saw San Francisco topple Seattle 3-2 in the seventh game of the league championship playoffs in 1963. The crowd went crazy, displaying emotion even more strongly than people did when the Giants won their first (and only) pennant.

The switch to the Oakland Coliseum and the National Hockey League still brought in decent crowds, but the club only made the playoffs once.

But most hockey fans are diehard supporter of their team, and for some reason, the crowds at the Coliseum did not equal those at the Cow Palace when the WHL Seals were playing.

Some say the reason the NHL Seals never drew was because Oakland wasn't as good a hockey town as San Francisco was, just like many people think Oakland is a better basketball town than San Francisco is.

There's probably some merit to these beliefs. When the Seals joined the NHL and moved to the Coliseum they probably lost some San Francisco supporters. Many San Franciscans, no matter how much they like a sport, will simply not journey across the Bay Bridge to watch a sporting event in Oakland.

If that is indeed the case, then that did indeed hurt the Seals' chances in the NHL.

Oakland, with its history of outstanding high school basketball teams, found itself more at home with the Warriors when they moved permanently to the Coliseum. The Warriors never really caught on in San Francisco, despite the fact the team won division championships in 1964 and 1967 with the likes of Wilt Chamberlain, Rick Barry and Nate Thurmond.

But ice hockey is a different story. Despite the fact the PHL is not anywhere near NHL caliber the sport is the same and those people who followed the early Seals should find the team interesting and exciting to watch.

Another Thriller for 'Pokes

TRACY — The hero changed, but the story was the same for Livermore High's basketball team yesterday. Center Brian Schweiger capped an outstanding fourth quarter performance by following up his own missed shot for a basket with 12 seconds remaining to give the Cowboys a 52-20 win over Piedmont in the Tracy Lions Club Christmas Basketball Tournament.

It was the second time in the tournament the 'Pokes have pulled one out in the final seconds after their thrilling 70-69 double overtime win over Grace Davis Tuesday.

The Livermore squad plays for the fifth - place trophy in the mammoth 16 - team tourney against tough Mt. Miguel of Spring Valley, ranked 13th in Southern California and 4th in San Diego County. Game time is 4:30 at Tracy High School on East 11th Street.

After Wednesday's 66-55 loss to Mission, Livermore coach John Erceg was pleased with his team's play against the taller, stronger, faster, bigger San Franciscans. After the Piedmont game, the 'Poke mentor felt his team played better Wednesday.

"I think everyone was just flat and tired, including them," Erceg said. "We didn't execute that well. We played better again against Mission...for sure."

Piedmont was coming off a 86-74 setback to Oakland's Skyline, after upsetting one of the pre-tourney favorites, A.A. Stagg of Stockton, 80-78 Monday.

Faced with the task of upsetting a Mt. Miguel squad which lost a 105-94 horse race to Stockton's Edison Tuesday and then beat Tracy 84-63 yesterday, Erceg managed a curious smile.

"We'll be real patient with them," he said, mentioning the same strategy he tried to work against Mission. "We're not gonna get no ninety points. They're not going to get 100. We'll just go slower than they want to."

Against Piedmont, the 'Pokes played nip and tuck the entire game. After the Scots erased 11-6 first quarter Livermore lead with a 10-0 string of points to take an 11-6 lead, the advantage for neither team grew by more than four points.

Livermore trailed 7-6 after the defensive first quarter, but gradually kept picking away at the Scot lead when finally, at :03 before half, John Bachleda banked home a jumper to tie the game at 22-22.

Bachleda picked up right where he left off in the third quarter, sinking a jumper from the middle of the key to give the 'Pokes the lead, 24-22, for the first time since the opening minutes.

Ahead 29-26, the 'Pokes let the lead slip away again when consecutive jumpers by Jeff Westmont, Justin Roach and Chuck Dresel gave Piedmont a 32-29 lead.

Livermore tied it at 32-32 with 1:03 to go in the quarter on a Schweiger free throw and Dick Patterson's jumper, but a free toss by Piedmont's Charlie Gathright with :53 remaining gave the lead back to the Scots, 33-32.

Waiting for the last shot of the quarter, the 'Pokes worked the ball into Patterson, who sank a short jumper with :05 showing to send the Cowboys into the fourth quarter ahead 34-33.

Piedmont quickly scored the first two hoops of the quarter for a 37-34 lead, maintaining a 45-42 advantage with 4:37 to play.

Livermore grabbed back the lead at 46-45 on another Patterson jumper and an offensive rebound tip - in by Schweiger, who grabbed his own missed free throw.

Roach connected on a jumper as Piedmont went back up 47-46, but Patterson countered with a ten - footer at 2:09 for a 48-47 'Poke lead. However, the Scots ran the ball downcourt quickly and Gathright followed up a missed shot for a bucket and a 49-48 Piedmont lead.

With 1:41 to play, Schweiger was fouled under the basket and went to the line for two shots. The Scots probably didn't mind at the time, as Schweiger had missed six of nine throws during the game.

After Schweiger put home the first one, Erceg called time out to calm his squad down and discuss a stall strategy if need be. Need indeed became, as Schweiger made his toss to put Livermore ahead 50-49, but with 1:06 to play Gathright made his first and missed the second of a one - and - one situation to make it 50-50.

Livermore employed a four corners offense with the score again tied, waiting for the last shot. With guards John Farfan and Jim Rogers leading the tactic, Schweiger was found open under the basket with 12 seconds to go. He took an eight - foot jumper, missed, but tipped the rebound in to give the 'Pokes the winning margin.

Roach missed an opportunity to tie the game for Piedmont when he missed a 15 - foot jumper with :03 to play. Patterson snared the rebound and held on to the ball while the clock ran out.

Patterson led all scorers with 24 points, while Schweiger scored 14, ten of which came in the fourth quarter. Gathright led Piedmont with 26 points.

TRACY TRIVIA — Mission and Skyline played last night in a trans-bridge rival in one semi-final game, while the tournament's most offensive team yet, Edison, played Merced in the other semi - final. Merced beat Granada 70-61 Monday and trounced Tracy Wednesday night. Mt. Miguel beat Tracy for the right to face Livermore ... Tonight's championship game begins at 9:00, while the third place game starts at 7:30. Sacramento's Highlands played Stagg, while Franklin of Stockton faced De La Salle yesterday with the winners meeting for the consolation championship at 6:00 tonight, immediately following the Livermore - Mt. Miguel contest. De La Salle beat Granada 79-54... livermore's first - round opponent, Grace Davis of Modesto, lost to Highlands Wednesday...Stagg's loss to Piedmont Monday was only their second this year, the other coming in the finals of the Amador Basketball Classic to Castlemont — a team which beat SF's Mission by 25 points this year. Mission's pre - season record is now 14-3, Mt. Miguel's is 8-2, and Livermore's is 7-4.

AV, Mats in soccer final

It will be Amador Valley's potent offense against the stingy defense of Granada in the championship game of the Ballistic United Amador Valley Soccer Tournament today at 1 p.m. on the Amador Valley High School field.

Both teams took impressive shutout victories over East Bay Athletic League rivals in the semifinals yesterday. Amador Valley shutout Livermore 4-0 and Granada topped Foothill 2-0.

In consolation action Newark came from behind to beat San Ramon, 4-2 and Memorial nipped De La Salle 3-2. Newark and De La Salle will meet at 11 a.m. for the consolation crown.

Amador Valley made three of its goals on penalty kicks. The Dons opened the scoring when Joe Correia belted a penalty shot right through the nets with five minutes gone in the first half.

Two minutes later Correia hit the scoreboard again with a 10-yard boot from the right side off an assist by Paul Cowden. Correia took the pass from Cowden and booted it on a low arch through the nets.

Marty Espinoza, who has played brilliantly all tournament for the Dons, added the third goal on a penalty kick with 28 minutes gone in the half.

Amador Valley narrowly missed another goal in the first period when Armando Cano fired a shot which carounded off the cross bar and back onto the field. Another foot and Cano's shot would have been good.

Ken Crow added the final AV goal with 20 minutes elapsed in the final period, on a penalty kick. The penalty was called after Livermore goalie Rick Woods, who did a stellar job in the nets for the 'Pokes, handballed a shot by Greg Oxsen. Crow then booted the penalty shot right through for the fourth score.

Despite that fact Amador Valley scored three of its goals on penalty shots the Dons showed plenty of offensive ability. Amador Valley had 19 shots on goal and Livermore collected 10. Each team had one corner kick. Woods had five saves and Don goalie Scott Kinney hauled in eight.

"Our passing was very good," smiled AV coach Mike Geib. "We put a lot of pressure on them and our front line, both regulars and subs, did a fine job."

Geib also had praise for if fullbacks. "Cowden and Leonard Baine did very well," he said. "Baine had his best game and is improving all the time."

What does Geib expect from Granada today? "Well, they're a smart defensive team. One of the best around," he answered. "They cover for each other very well at all times."

Granada scored both of its goals in the first half to put away a strong Foothill squad.

Foothill put on a fine offensive threat, particularly in the first half, and ended with 19 shots on goal. Granada had 14. Each had had 15 corner kicks.

"We played well today," Granada coach Bill Coupe said. "Better than we did against Moreau Wednesday. Foothill is a better team than Moreau. They're aggressive and we were more excited about playing them, basically because their another EBAL team."

Granada's defense has been outstanding in the tournament. After ringing up a 10-2 victory over Sunset in the opening game the Matadors have shutout their opponents in the past two contests, including an overtime tie-break against Moreau.

Cards 'up' for Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Tex. — The Stanford Cardinals' right guard Marc Hill searched the hotels here for eight frustrated hours last night looking for his parents.

Hill's parents have not missed a Stanford football game in the four years that he has been with the squad, and they weren't about to miss seeing their son start against the Louisiana State Tigers in the Sun Bowl here Saturday.

But the wayward family was delayed in San Francisco along with a plane-load of Texas-bound passengers. During the lengthy wait, Ned Hill discussed his son's brilliant and at one point tragic gridiron career, and with the bias of probably being the most enthusiastic Card rooter, made some predictions about the game.

"If Stanford plays to their potential, we will beat them. We have an excellent, balanced offense," he noted.

The senior Hill could qualify as a resident expert as his travel expenses reached $3500 a season in following the team. He and his wife leave Sunday for the Hula Bowl in Hawaii, to watch their son play in his second-to-last college game; as he leaves next week for his final appearance in the Japan Bowl.

Marc is cautiously optimistic about the game Saturday, but he agreed with his father about the prospective outcome. "If Stanford goes in with the same type of determination that we eliminated Cal with, we can beat anybody. If we give Guy the protection he'll be throwing all day," the younger Hill said. "It will either be very close, or there will be a wide split. When teams are this close in their offenses, it's a matter of getting the edge and keeping it," he outlined.

The odds are, that whatever else it might be, it will be a high-scoring game, as two consensus All-American offensive players will be trying to outscore each other; running back Charles Alexander of LSU and the Cards' passing quarterback Guy Benjamin.

The key to victory, according to Marc, will be in making no mistakes, and playing consistent football.

A lot of praise for the solid Cards' season total of 8-3 goes to head coach Bill Walsh, according to the Hills.

"He makes the plays easy to learn. His pass plays are probably the most complex in college football," Marc said.

"I think Walsh has a looser attitude," the senior Hill family member said of the debuting coach. "There is more interaction between the offense and the defense. Before this season there wasn't too much mixing. Walsh pays more attention to details. It's a cohesive unit; a real one-team concept."

Neither one of the Hills seem to think that the Sun Bowl lacks any of the excitement or atmosphere that could have been had at the almost-attainable Rose Bowl.

"Anybody who's playing in a Bowl Game has to be high. We are really excited. This is a neat way to end off my season, and the young players can help to build a name for themselves and the school," Marc said.

But Marc missed spring ball. And, according to what the doctors told him, he should have missed the rest of his career. He was stricken with a viral paralysis from the chest down early in the spring this year, but "miraculously" returned this fall in time for practice. His father said that he set a goal of running up and down the stadium steps at school ten times a day to regain his strength. Hill did achieve this.

"The doctors said that he recovered 600 percent faster than expected. He set a personal goal for himself, but he also didn't want to let the team down," the senior Hill related.

The paternal praise, which was well deserved, was abundant. "Marc's the kind of guy that will really bury someone on the field, and then help him up," his father said.

The clinical child psychology major, who is on a full academic scholarship, said that all he can do in the game is give it his 100 percent.

"I'm going to be facing George Atiyeh all day and he's tough. I'll be playing number two, for my future," Marc said. He said that there are several scouts and teams that have approached him already about his prospects for the National Football League.

A's talks today

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Oakland Coliseum officials will get together Friday in this Southern California resort city for business instead of pleasure.

They will meet at a Palm Springs hotel to discuss the proposed sale and transfer of the A's franchise to Denver and the sticky issue of Finley's Oakland Coliseum lease which has 10 years remaining.

Finley said Thursday by telephone from his Chicago insurance office, "Bowie Kuhn was invited, as commissioner, to attend the meeting."

Kuhn's office in New York described the commissioner's role at the meeting as that of an observer, but Finley said, "I don't consider him an observer. He'll be there as commissioner. He's very interested in this situation."

Finley said he was facing George Atiyeh all day and he's tough. I'll be playing number two, for my future," Marc said. He said that there are several scouts and teams that have approached him already about his prospects for the National Football League.

Storms hurt angling

Fishing at local angling spots has slowed due to the high winds and turbulent water caused by recent storms, according to the East Bay Regional Park District.

At Del Valle in Livermore, trout fishing had been excellent the previous week with anglers taking an average 4.7 trout each. However, very few trout have been taken since the storm pounded the Bay Area. Trout are taking red salmon eggs and marshmallows.

At Shadow Cliffs in Pleasanton, fishing is very slow and angling pressure has fallen off at the lake substantially. A trout plant in early January should improve fishing greatly.

At San Pablo Reservoir near Orinda, anglers spent an average of 4.8 hours per visit to take an average 1.8 fish each. The catch rate was fair at .37 fish per angler hour. Anglers are fishing from the shore due to the weather. Most fish taken are hitting red salmon eggs.

On Dec. 14, 4,500 rainbow trout, each weighing approximately 1/2 pound, were planted here. A plant of trophy fish will be made soon.

At Lafayette Reservoir in Lafayette, a Dec. 9 plant has caused fishing to be "fantastic," says one ranger. Half-pound rainbows are hitting small shiny spinners, salmon eggs, and marshmallows. The best spots are the east end and the east cove.

On Dec. 20 and 21, plants of 2,300 half-pound trout were made here.

At Lake Chabot in Castro Valley, trout fishing is still very slow as anglers are averaging only .36 trout per angler hour. Two thousand half-pound trout planted last week should produce results soon.

At Pt. Pinole Pier in Pt. Pinole Regional Park, rain and wind have reduced the number of people using the pier. A few striped bass are being taken, mostly on burlhads, but various surf perch species (Walleye, white and pile) and topmelt are providing most of the action.

Allison Lion leads aerobic dance session in Dublin.

Dancing for fitness

DUBLIN — A group of 15 Dublin-San Ramon residents limbered up during aerobic dancing demonstrations at Shannon Community Center.

The exhibitions were sponsored by the Dublin San Ramon Services District Recreation Department (DSRSD). Qualified instructors for teaching aerobic dance techniques were on hand during yesterday's morning and evening sessions.

If enough people show interest, aerobic dance classes will be formed by the DSRSD Recreation Department.

Aerobics is a system of cardiovascular conditioning accomplished through dance/exercise which strengthens the heart and lungs. The exercises force the body to demand increased amounts of oxygen over a long period of time. Muscles get toned up in the process.

Jacki Sorensen, a native Californian, is the originator and choreographer of the aerobic dancing concept. Vigorous dances designed with the non-dancer in mind are used.

These dances, set to popular songs, combine dance movements with running and jumping. Leg kicks, lunges, arm swings and jogging are incorporated into the dances.

An estimated 20,000 women are enrolled in aerobic dance classes throughout the United States, according to "Womensports."

Men as well as women attended the Shannon Community Center demonstrations.

Sorensen is a Clinician for the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. She is also President of Aerobic Dancing, Inc. She conducts and coordinates nationwide clinics for YMCA's, public schools and colleges plus research projects in Aerobic Dancing.

Those participating in the Shannon Center demonstrations said it was a "fun" way to exercise — "not boring like some other ways."

Gator Bowl

Pitt ready for Clemson

An undefeated season and a national championship aren't on the line this time, but the University of Pittsburgh's engagement in the Gator Bowl football game against Clemson Friday night is far from meaningless.

"There's certainly not a national championship at stake, but we have a lot of motivation," said Pitt's star quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, who passed and handed off to Tony Dorsett in the 1977 Sugar Bowl victory over Georgia that sealed the Panthers' undefeated and championship season.

One of the major motivations is pride. The Panthers lost their final regular season game to Penn State last month in a nationally televised game and they see the nationally televised Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla. as a means of redemption.

"We played badly in our last game on national TV, and I don't think people got a good view of what our team is all about," said Cavanaugh, a senior who missed the early part of the season with a fractured bone in his left arm. "I played poorly in situations that could have decided the game."

"I want to go out a winner myself, and I know the other seniors feel the same way. We've done a lot of good things together, and we want to finish it off the right way."

The clash between Pitt and Clemson, teams with identical 8-2-1 records this season, kicks off a New Year's weekend of 10 bowl games, including four on Jan. 2 which will decide Pitt's successor as national champion.

The national title will be virtually clinched by Texas on Monday if the undefeated and top-ranked Longhorns can beat Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

Should Texas lose, the race for national champion would become wide open with four teams, each with one loss, all seeking the prize. Oklahoma and Arkansas, both 10-1, hook up in the Orange Bowl at Miami; once-beaten Michigan meets Washington in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., and Ohio State, 9-2, plays Alabama, 10-1, in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

The Saturday lineup has Louisiana State against Stanford in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Texas; North Carolina State against Iowa State in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta; Texas A&M against Southern California in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston, and the East-West Shrine Game at San Francisco.

USF wins

OKLAHOMA CITY — San Francisco, getting a superb performance from Oklahoma City product Winford Boynes, held off Miami-Ohio 91-88 Thursday night to vault into Friday's championship game of the All College Basketball Tournament.

Boynes scored 30 points, 16 in the second half, as the Dons survived a sizzling shooting display by Miami.

San Francisco led at the half 49-43 but gave up the lead early in the second half before Boynes went on a scoring binge.

The Dons appeared to be in control when James Hardy converted a 3-point play to make it 88-82, but Randy Ayers hit two quick buckets and Bernard Newman hit a layup to make it 91-88, with 15 seconds left.

The Redskins, who shot 54 percent from the field for the game, got another chance to score but Hardy blocked a shot by Ayers.

Bill Cartwright added 20 points for the Dons. Archie Aldridge led Miami with 19 points, Ayers and Rick Goins had 16 each, Newman had 14 and John Shoemaker had 13.

San Francisco will meet the winner of the Boston College-Arizona State game that was being played late Thursday night for the championship game Friday night. Miami will play the loser of that game for third place.

In the consolation round of the tournament Thursday afternoon, Norman Jackson tallied 16 points to pace a balanced Austin Peay attack, and the Governors shot an incredible 90 percent from the free throw line to defeat Texas A&M, 76-70.

In earlier consolation action, Lamont Reid scored 34 points as Oral Roberts University clobbered Oklahoma City University, 80-65.

Still no racing

SAN MATEO — With trainers again failing to enter their horses the Friday night harness program at Bay Meadows has been cancelled and the card for Saturday afternoon is extremely doubtful.

Members of the Western Standardbred Association on the grounds met Thursday and again voted not to enter after their negotiations informed them of the "final offer" by the California Horse Racing Association, which operates the Meadows harness meeting.

While the first weekend of the eight-week meeting is apparently completely lost, there was a glimmer of hope of a settlement when the California Horse Racing Board called a meeting of interested parties at its Sacramento offices for Saturday morning.

Dr. William J. Ward, president and general manager of the C. H. R. A., remains pessimistic about the meeting ever getting off the ground.

"We have made our best offer and it has been turned down," he said. "For us to increase it would put us out of business anyway."

Following the horsemen's meeting conducted by Charles Beilen, president of the W. S. A., several trainers began making plans to ship to other tracks in the East and Midwest.

Jerry Silverman, who has 20 horses in his public stable, contacted officials at the Meadows in New Jersey for stall space, while others were also preparing to move.

Dr. Ward had previously stated that if racing was not conducted this weekend, the remaining seven weeks were definitely in jeopardy.

Perhaps, the meeting in Sacramento will bring about an agreement on a new purse contract, which is what the dispute is all about.

Meanwhile, the only thing settled at the Meadows is the dust. The recent heavy rains took care of that.

PLANNING COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF PLEASANTON

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Planning Commission of the City of Pleasanton has set January 11, 1978, at the hour of 8:00 P.M. Wednesday evening, a regular Planning Commission meeting in the Pleasanton Council Chambers, 30 West Angela Street, Pleasanton, California, as the time and place to consider the following matter:

Application of the City Council to rezone an approximately 60-acre parcel of land located between the intersection of the City Limit line at the end of Arbor Drive from the R-1-6500 and R-1-20,000 (Single Family Residential) Districts to the HPD (Hillside Planned Development) District, or any other zoning district that the City finds to be appropriate.

On the basis of an Initial Study of the potential environmental impacts of the project, it has been determined that the proposed project would not have any potential significant adverse effects on the environment and that an environmental impact report need not be prepared. The Initial Study and Negative Declaration are available for review at the Planning Department, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California. Comments on this decision must be received at the Planning Department no later than January 4, 1978, in order to be considered by the Planning Commission prior to their decision on the proposed project.

The Planning Commission may approve, modify or deny the application, or recommend to the City Council any action deemed in the public interest.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the hearing shall be held and persons concerned shall be heard by the Planning Commission.

Contreras is prep-of-week

Steve Contreras, a heavyweight wrestler at Alhambra High School in Martinez, has been selected as this week's winner of the Contra Costa County Fleeto Sports Award.

Contreras swept four matches via pins to win the championship of the Monte Vista Invitational Tournament and remain unbeaten during the current season.

In San Mateo County, Tod Sedlacek, a 6-2 swingman for the San Carlos basketball team, scored 94 points and grabbed 69 rebounds in four games of the Sunnyvale Holiday Tournament. Honored by the Oakland-based wood finish firm a year ago, Sedlacek won his second Fleeto and was a repeat on the all-tourney team.

St. Ignatius' 6-7, 215 center Tony Zanze got the nod in San Francisco, canning eight of nine field goal attempts in a 67-54 win over Washington.

No Alameda County winner was selected this week.

GRANADA DUCATS

Family season tickets are now available to fans of Granada High School. There is a $25 price for two adults and their children under high school age. This allows the buyers entrance to seven East Bay Athletic League home boys' basketball games.

A $12 ticket admits two adults and their children under high school age to seven home EBAL girls' basketball games.

LIVERMORE TICKETS

Family tickets for boys and girls basketball at Livermore High School are on sale in the dean's office.

The cost for seven league games is $25 for boys and $12 for girls. Two adults and all children under high school age can get in for that price.

PA SIGN-UPS

The Pleasanton American Little League and Senior League has scheduled its signups for Saturday, Jan. 7 and Saturday, Jan. 14 at Walnut Grove School.

Registrations will be taken from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Youngsters should be between eight and 15 years of age. The official age is that attained prior to Aug. 1, 1978.

All new sign-ups must have a birth certificate as proof of age.

The New York Giants battled 319 as a team in 1930, the highest by a major league club in this century.

Mormon youths give musicals

Youth and adult leaders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints meet together each year to write, direct and produce scripts, sets, costumes for traveling roadshows, original miniature musical comedies.

The purpose of the roadshows is to develop the talents of the young persons in drama, music and art, to provide family entertainment and to teach cooperation among all ages.

This year there were seven traveling roadshow troupes. The musical comedies were 18 minutes in length and were presented for Mormon groups in Livermore, Pleasanton and San Ramon.

Three hundred seventy three young people from ages 12 to 18 participated, along with 104 adults. Fifty five vehicles were used to transport the performers and sets, and 1500 persons attended the shows.

The stories were expressed in music, dance and speech. The theme for this year was "Once Upon a Nursery Rhyme." Each Ward Mutual group, which consists of youths and their adult leaders, write, direct and produce these shows to travel between three buildings in one night. Judging took place by nine judges from outside the Valley.

Baptists surprised: no federal funds

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Officials of two Southern Baptist seminaries were surprised by news reports that they were being cut off from federal funds because of sex discrimination. The schools don't get federal funds.

"We do not now, nor have we in the past received federal government or tax monies," said the Rev. Dr. Landrum Levell, president of New Orleans Baptist Seminary in response to the announcement from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Reacting to a similar report, the Rev. Dr. W. Randall Lolley, president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Winston-Salem, N.C., said, "It's puzzling to me for HEW to say that our funds have been withdrawn when we receive no monies whatsoever from them or any other federal agency."

He added there was no kind of discrimination at the school on sex or any other basis. At the New Orleans seminary, 30 per cent of the students are women. The rhubarb apparently occurred because the schools had not filled in government forms promising not to discriminate. They said they didn't do so since they're church auxiliaries accepting no tax monies, and not subject to federal agency regulations.

BOARD OF ADJUSTMENT OF THE
CITY OF PEASANTON
COUNTY OF ALAMEDA
STATE OF CALIFORNIA

NOTICE OF
PUBLIC HEARING

The Board of Adjustment of the City of Peasanton has set January 11, 1978, at the hour of 7:00 P.M. Wednesday evening, a regular Board of Adjustment meeting in the Peasanton Council Chambers, 30 West Angela Street, Peasanton, California, as the time and place to consider the following matter:

Application of William Hirst for a variance to various sections of Article 3, Chapter 2, Title II of the Ordinance Code of the City of Peasanton, to allow the construction of additions to the office building located at 147 Bernal Avenue which would encroach into the required front and side yards and which would exceed the allowable floor area / lot size ratio. The additions would total about 2,600 sq. ft. and a portion would be a two-story addition. The property is zoned O (Office) District.

On the basis of an Initial Study of the potential environmental impacts of the property, it has been determined that the proposed project would not have any potential significant adverse effects on the environment and that an environmental impact report need not be prepared. The Initial Study and Negative Declaration are available for review at the Planning Department, 200 Bernal Avenue, Peasanton, California. Comments on this decision must be received at the Planning Department no later than January 4, 1978, in order to be considered by the Board of Adjustment prior to their decision on the proposed project.

The Board of Adjustment may approve, modify or deny the application or recommend to the City Council any action deemed in public interest.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the above hearing shall be held and persons concerned shall be heard by the Board of Adjustment.

CITY OF PEASANTON
COUNTY OF ALAMEDA
STATE OF CALIFORNIA

NOTICE OF
PUBLIC HEARING

The Planning Commission of the City of Peasanton has set January 11, 1978, at the hour of 8:00 P.M. Wednesday evening, a regular Planning Commission meeting in the Peasanton Council Chambers, 30 West Angela Street, Peasanton, California, as the time and place to consider the following matter:

Application of the City of Peasanton to rezone a 13.6 acre parcel of land located on the north side of Stanley Boulevard bounded on the north by the Western Pacific Railroad and on the east by the Southern Pacific Railroad to the C-3 (Commercial Service) District or any other zoning district which the City finds to be appropriate and in conformance with the General Plan.

On the basis of an Initial Study of the potential environmental impacts of the project, it has been determined that the proposed project would not have any potential significant adverse effects on the environment and that an environmental impact report need not be prepared. The Initial Study and Negative Declaration are available for review at the Planning Department, 200 Bernal Avenue, Peasanton, California. Comments on this decision must be received at the Planning Department no later than January 4, 1978, in order to be considered by the Planning Commission prior to their decision on the proposed project.

The Planning Commission may approve, modify or deny the application, or recommend to the City Council any action deemed in the public interest.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the hearing shall be held and persons concerned shall be heard by the Planning Commission.

Lab physicist sees KQED format change

LIVERMORE — The chairperson of a reform group trying to make KQED-TV "more responsive to its viewing public" was pleased this week with the election of his group's two candidates to the station's 27 member board of directors.

Though election of Henry Kroll and Jane Kennedy seems only a drop in the bucket among 27 directors, their presence should agitate some interesting ideas, Laurence S. Hall told The Times.

The pair will be joined by a third reform-minded new director, Leslie Lipson, a former news broadcaster on the station, who also was nominated by petition, although not endorsed by Hall's Committee to Save KQED.

Five board-nominated candidates also were elected to the eight directorship vacancies. They were incumbent Charles Patterson, Phyllis Matsuno, George Gund III, Naomi Lauter and Toby Schreiber. Some 17,916 ballots were cast or 16.3 per cent of the station's 109,438 subscribers.

It was the second year that the reform group ran candidates, the first in which they were successful.

Among the group's major concerns are the current management's alleged "dismantling" of the prize-winning Newsroom investigative reporting show and a desire to see more locally originated programming aimed at telling the community about itself. Now the station seems intent on producing local shows with an eye to how salable they are to other educational TV stations around the nation, said Hall.

Asked whether reinstatement of the previously popular Newsroom would be a goal, Hall said it may not necessarily take the form of the old format, but the committee definitely wants to see "excellence in news and public affairs programming" and investigative reporting should be a part of it.

Hall, a former Livermore resident, lives in Oakland and is a physicist at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory. Anyone interested in the Save KQED committee can reach it at 7695 Crest Ave., Oakland or at 415-635-6398.

Castlewood lot split appealed

HAYWARD — John Heine will appeal the planning director's rejection of his lot split on 50 acres on Quail Court in Castlewood next Tuesday.

Planning Director William Fraley turned down the application because he felt that the private street is too narrow and steep to support more traffic. It has three homes and a vacant lot on it.

When Heine's original lot was created, Castlewood residents were concerned that too much development might occur around Quail Court. In response, the planning commission changed the area from one-acre lots to 20-acre lots.

When the size of Heine's lot was pointed out at that time, with the implication that it could be split, the remark was made that the commission would have control over such a proposal. The commission will face that decision at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the county public works building, 399 Elmhurst.

There has been concern recently that the Castlewood sewage treatment plant cannot take more development. However, if Heine wins his lot split, commissioners can attach a condition that he can't develop it until the Dublin San Ramon Services District takes Castlewood's sewage, expected sometime in the next two or three years.

A similar diton condition was placed on Edith Marshall's proposed development on eight lots in Castlewood.

Heine's lot is in the last major vacant area of Castlewood, though with the 20-acre limit in effect there now, few lots could develop.

There was a proposal a couple of years ago to build 80 condominiums on the 10-acre putting green area at Castlewood, but the country club membership disagreed among itself over the notion and it never was presented to the planning commission.

County flood plain maps on exhibit

Maps delineating the 100-year flood plains in the unincorporated areas of Alameda County are now on display for public viewing at county offices in Hayward.

Persons living in unincorporated areas should view the maps to determine if they reside in critical areas, or if they know of errors that should be challenged.

Public meetings to explain the maps and the federal Flood Community Center, 11600 Shannon Ave. in Dublin, Jan. 4 at 7:30 p.m. The second meeting will take place at the Public Works Building Auditorium, 399 Elmhurst St. in Hayward, Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m.

The maps are on display at county offices, 399 Elmhurst St. in Hayward. Contact Jack Lindley at 881-6485 for further information.

TRACTION FORCE: 135,375 pounds
HORSE POWER: 6000+

THE WORLD'S LARGEST LOCOMOTIVE

Hardly a railroad conversation passes without the mention of the Union Pacific's "Big Boy" class of locomotives. It has been said, "If they couldn't go over a mountain they would go through it!" "Big Boy" was definitely the heaviest steam engine ever constructed and, as a successful grouping, they were the longest. Although their pulling power was eclipsed by other locomotives, the "Big Boy" class was one of the most powerful. Its nearly six foot tall driving wheels were the biggest ever applied to an eight axle articulated engine giving it the capacity to "run" at 80 MPH.

The 25 "Big Boys" were numbered 4000-4024 since they were designed to pull 4000 ton trains over the Wasatch Mountains in eastern Utah without the aid of additional helper engines. They were so successful that the Union Pacific assigned them to Sherman Hill, a grueling climb between Cheyenne and Laramie, Wyoming, until July 22, 1959. On that date Number 4015 made the last run for a "Big Boy" hauling freight on the Union Pacific.

Of the original 25 engines, eight still survive today. They are:

4004 - Holiday Park, Cheyenne, Wyoming
4005 - Forney Museum, Denver, Colorado
4006 - Museum of Transportation, St. Louis, Missouri
4012 - Steamtown USA, Scranton, Pennsylvania
